A detailed guide to selecting the CSA farm that's right for you!
Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) is a way to buy local food directly from a farmer near you. Before the growing season, you purchase a “share” of the harvest and become a farm member.

You then receive vegetables and other farm products throughout the growing season. Some farms also offer customizable shares, where you can determine what goes in your box each week. Other farms offer market shares, where you can select your own veggies at their farmers market stands.

The CSA farmer/member relationship goes beyond the usual commercial transaction by allowing a member to learn about local food production, while receiving the freshest local ingredients. Being a CSA member provides farmers a fair price for the food they grow.

If you want to know where your food comes from, CSA is your most direct link to the land. The only way to eat food that’s more local is to become a farmer!

Why Choose A FairShare Endorsed Farm?

A FairShare-endorsed farm promises to:

• Be certified organic or in transition to organic certification;

• Grow and produce the majority of the products they offer in their shares on their own farm;

• Demonstrate a high level of customer service to its members year after year.
BENEFITS OF CSA

Along with farm-fresh food, often harvested less than 24 hours before delivery, other benefits of CSA membership typically include:

• Farm newsletters with each delivery, including notes about what’s happening on the farm, a description of share contents, cooking tips, and recipes.

• Opportunities to visit the farm and attend farm events.

• Many share options to choose from including extended season shares (spring, fall, winter), customizable shares, and various share sizes to meet the needs of every household.

• Payment plans to accommodate households on a tight budget and/or financial support for eligible households through the Partner Shares Program.

I love the intensity of farming. I love feeling so connected to the rhythms of seasons...cranking in the summer, resting in the super cold times. I love being outside and I believe deeply in the environmental and social underpinnings of what we do.

CSA FOR HEALTH

Are you looking to eat more veggies this year? People buy CSA for healthy food and to support local farmers.

88% of people say they eat healthier because of CSA!

CSA Members

... Cook with a greater variety of ingredients

... Eat more servings of fresh vegetables and fruit

... Get new recipes and cooking advice from their farmers

I believe that our food is our health, and fresh, organic produce is natural nourishment. And knowing where my food comes from — down to the actual farm — gives me peace of mind for my own cooking and knowing I’m doing my part to support practices I care about, like combating climate change by buying and eating local, seasonal products through CSA.

BRIANA KRANTZ
CSA Member
I really like to cook, and I like the challenge of incorporating different ingredients into my menu for the week. I also think socially conscious farming is very important in our current climate. Farmers need to be supported in making decisions that are good for the environment.

BETHANY JUREWICZ
CSA Member
There are some core mission pieces we have, and one of them certainly is to have CSA at the center of what we do, at the center of decisions that we make. Even ahead of the season and then within the season, we’re thinking about what do our members appreciate, what do they want, etc.

Being in direct connection with the people that are eating what we grow is really the important thing.
